

The online operating backbone of the Central Association.

A digital root point connecting education, media, the creative community, theatre and press visibility — while giving every member organisation a place inside one interpretable online structure.

The Central Association of Hungarian Associations and Organisations in Austria is the umbrella, educational, cultural and digital coordination point of Hungarian community life in Austria. This page shows how the main institutional surfaces, member organisations, press visibility and the DÖR 2026 pilot connect.

The central page administrator has access to every project group. The structure is still being built, but the surfaces already work.

Theatre and youth-cultural branch

Vienna Hungarian Musical Company

musicaltarsulat.at

Musical Company Facebook group

Community organisation, rehearsals, performances, parent and audience connection.

The entire online ecosystem can also be managed from mobile.

Wix-based central operations

Not a collection of separate websites, but a unified Wix environment. Media, events, online payments, members, newsletters and permissions — all manageable from one mobile app.

Permission levels are separated: editor, event manager, communication and finance lead, membership manager and administrator. No single person carries the whole load — everyone sees what belongs to their task. The structure is still being built; the main surfaces already work.

Media and content

News, articles, images, social appearances and press monitoring managed by the right responsible roles.

Facebook group architecture

The central Facebook page contains the own project groups. This avoids a fragmented system of parallel pages and creates a manageable community structure.

Event system

Programmes, event pages, registrations, updates and community communication in one organised system.

Online payment

Tickets, participation fees, donations or services handled according to the possibilities provided by Wix.

Members and community

Members, interested people, families, organisational actors and relationship circles managed transparently.

Newsletter and communication

Targeted information, invitations, reports and community messages prepared and sent out.

Permission and task

Every actor only accesses what belongs to their task. This gives the system operational security and scalability.

A voluntary pilot for diaspora visibility, renewal through young operators and stronger community autonomy.

DÖR 2026 is a living diaspora-relationship pilot. It does not collect data about the diaspora; it builds a living relationship with the diaspora: it makes organisational profiles, events, community stories, young operators and local connection points visible.

The starting point is not theoretical. The Vienna model has already produced practical experience on a small scale; the pilot's aim is to turn this into an auditable, voluntary, opt-out and scalable operating logic within 90-120 days.

Which pain does it solve?

In many places, diaspora communities work invisibly: events, schools, clubs, community stories and volunteer achievements often remain in local channels. DÖR turns these into a living, searchable and updateable operating picture.

What is the first product?

Organisational profile, event calendar, Junior Hub access and basic activity feedback. Not a complete global system, but the smallest provable pilot core that shows whether organisations use it and whether young operators can be involved.

What protects autonomy?

Voluntary, opt-out and non-controlling. It does not rank, distribute funding, appoint representatives, decide legitimacy, or collect political or worldview-related data.

What is the decision gate?

After 90-120 days: Go / Modify / Stop. If it works, it can scale; if it needs improvement, it can be modified; if it does not prove community value or the risk cannot be closed, it can be stopped.

Austria is not a single point. It is a network.

The Central Association operates not only its own projects, but a member-organisation network spanning several regions, functions and generations. Here every organisation is visible individually, by region and role.

Visibility becomes operational strength.

The goal is not for the system to decide “from above” who represents what. The goal is to make already active community work visible, searchable, supportable and ready for generational transition.

Shared data sheet and updateable profile

Every member organisation can have a unified minimum profile: activities, programmes, region, contact, languages and operational focus.

Shared programme calendar and programme transfer

Events do not appear in isolation. It becomes visible what can be transferred from Vienna to Graz, Salzburg, Linz or Tyrol.

Young editors and next generation

Young people can join not only as a target group but as operators: content, archive, events, digital profile and community feedback.

More transparent decision preparation

The network's strengths, missing data and regional connections are visible in one place. This provides a strong basis for funding, professional and organisational decisions.

Autonomy and data-protection firewall

The system does not collect political data, appoint representatives or allocate funding. Organisational control and voluntariness are core principles.

Resource and cooperation map

It shows where strong educational, cultural, church, youth or professional nodes exist — and where joint development makes sense.

Central office and administration.

Official contact points in one place, arranged by role.
